

We are...local distribution

With Allied as your transport partner, you have an organisation that will work in-step with your company at the end of the supply chain where performance really counts - delivery to your customers. We will provide a seamless, integrated link between your warehouse and your market that makes it easier than ever before to monitor and control freight movement and costs while delivering an effective, trouble-free transport service.

We've developed a distribution model that enables us to exactly match a fleet to your transport needs. We can accurately assess your distribution network in terms of area and volume and then tailor a logistics 'package' that addresses all your requirements. If your volume demands, we'll even put an on-site supervisor in your warehouse to manage the smooth, accurate despatch of products from your store and to provide close liaison with your staff.

And it's a whole-of-business approach that not only delivers an effective, efficient transport fleet to your warehouse doors, it provides the administrative tools to monitor the entire delivery process as well as control costs as never before.

With Allied as your local distribution provider you enjoy the confidence of knowing that the delivery end of your business is in good hands with a team that has perfected a logistics 'engine' that satisfies the delivery needs of businesses throughout Australia. We pride ourselves on our ability and our track record, as a company that can treat your customers like our customers and views their level of satisfaction as seriously as you would. Allied Express is a company in whom you can confidently entrust your good name as a reliable supplier.
