

We are...driven

The logistics engine that drives Allied to be the best, is an ever-changing, multi-functional 'chameleon' that can be transformed to accommodate a myriad of transport models. Whatever delivery demands are placed on your business to function effectively and maintain its competitive edge, we take up that challenge for you in a way that reflects your company's unique demands and the specifics of your particular industry .

Allied's four divisions; courier, taxi-truck, local and national distribution are used in whatever combination and proportion required to satisfy your needs and to meet your expectations. And because they all exist under one roof, having Allied as your transport partner delivers efficiencies and economies in all areas of the relationship; bookings, customer-service, accounts and delivery tracking.

With one point of contact, you can get right to the heart of the matter fast, and at a level where effective action can be taken.

Allied is a family-owned and operated business that has grown to count among its clientele some of the biggest names in their respective industries. In terms of freight volume, we operate at the same level as the 'big' names of the transport industry but in a way that is, by far, more responsive and infinitely flexible to enable us to integrate seamlessly with an individual client's way of doing business.

And while the numbers of staff, depots and vehicles is large, they only describe the size of the business. What defines the nature of the business; the values, the service ethic and the willingness to deliver the way you want to, are the people who ensure it remains true to its beginnings
